RE-ERECTED 1999
BY THE LONDON MUNICIPAL CHARTER 1000

A Day of Remembrance

Every year on November 11, Canadians pause in a silent moment of remembrance for the men and women who have served, and continue to serve our country during times of war, conflict and peace. We honour those who fought for Canada in the South African War (1899-1902), First World War (1914-1918), the Second World War (1939-1945), and the Korean War (1950-1953), as well as those who have served since then. More than 1,500,000 Canadians have served our country in this way, and more than 118,000 have died. They gave their lives and their futures so that we may live in peace.

One day every year, we pay special homage to those who died in service to their country. We remember these brave men and women for their courage and their devotion to ideals. We wear poppies, attend ceremonies, and visit memorials. For one brief moment of our life, we remember why we must work for peace every day of the year.

Act of Remembrance

“They shall grow not old, as we are left grow old,
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn,
At the going down of the sun and in the morning,
We will remember them”

ALL: We will Remember Them

Abide With Me

Abide with me; fast falls the eventide;
The darkness deepens; Lord with me abide;
When other helpers fall and comforts flee; Help of the Helpless, O abide with me.

Hold thou Thy cross before my closing eyes;
Shine through the gloom and point me to the skies.
Heaven’s morning breaks,
And Earth’s vain shadows flee;
In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me.

1847, Henry Francis Lyte

In Flanders Fields

Lieutenant Colonel John McCrae

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

"In Flanders Fields" was written during the Great War (World War I) by Canadian physician Lieutenant-Colonel John McCrae. He was inspired to write it on May 3, 1915, after presiding over the funeral of friend and fellow soldier Lieutenant Alexis Helmer, who died in the Second Battle of Ypres.

According to legend, fellow soldiers retrieved the poem after McCrae, initially dissatisfied with his work, discarded it.

"In Flanders Fields" was first published on December 8 of that year in the British magazine Punch.

London's Cenotaph

In 1919, the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, commenced planning a memorial to the men and women of London who paid the supreme sacrifice during the Great War. With support of the Legion and other organizations, in 1925, it was decided to erect a smaller replica of the cenotaph standing in Whitehall, London, England. On 10 November 1934, the Impressive structure was dedicated in the presence of hundreds of citizens, veterans, and permanent force troops.
